

It is widely known that anarchists support cultural diversity and economic autonomy of individuals. Therefore, when we, anti-militarists, say that we support Ukrainian people in a war for their independence and freedom, we don't want to exterminate Russian people. We want to preserve the cultural and political independence of Ukrainian people, who are suffering from Russian military aggression, and who are facing the threat of assimilation and extermination by Russian State. We collectively express solidarity with Ukrainians not only as representatives of the oppressed economic class, but also as individuals and as representatives of regional communities with diverse linguistic and cultural traditions.

Russian aggression can't be stopped by freezing the frontline, as people on occupied territories will continue to face repressions based on ethnic identity. Ukrainian man on occupied territories will be first to be conscripted on the next russian attempt to attack Ukraine and will be forced to fight their own people, as it happened in Donetsk and Lugansk.

When "anarcho-putinists" attack our anti-militarism, they promote the agenda of neutrality, or more precisely, indifference to war, they call the activists, who can assist and solidarize with the oppressed people of Ukraine, for indifference and neutrality.

As anti-militarists, we will never be neutral nor indifferent.
We will continue to support Ukrainian people in their fight for independence and freedom, and encourage Russian people to fight against their repressive imperialist state!
